Ingredients for Incredible Immune Support*

Andrographis is a powerful adaptogen for immune defense and upper respiratory function. Andrographis Immune delivers a concentrated level of andrographolides, key compounds that make it effective and reliable.*

Melatonin is probably best known for supporting healthy sleep, but what many people may not realize is that decades of research (over 27,000 studies) show that melatonin also plays an intricate and powerful role in immune system activity and our entire metabolic function. And, the body's naturally occurring melatonin levels can decrease with age, occasional stress, or extensive screen time and light exposure. That's why it's important to ensure optimal levels for healthy immune function.*

Selenium and Zinc support upper respiratory health, cellular function, and glutathione levels—one of the body's naturally-occurring antioxidants. While these minerals are common, diet alone may not supply the optimal levels for immune strength.*

Frequently Asked Questions for Andrographis Immune*:

Q. I've heard that andrographis is called "King of the Bitters." Does that mean it will leave a terrible taste in my mouth?

A. Traditional preparations of andrographis were bitter tasting because of the nature of their beneficial compounds. However, since this andrographis is delivered in capsule form, you'll only notice the benefits—not the taste.

Q. Is the melatonin in this formula only for sleep support?

A. The melatonin in Andrographis Immune is included for two major reasons: 1) to help support natural circadian rhythms for healthy sleep and 2) for its own immune-supporting benefits. Melatonin supports many aspects of mind and body health, so it is a critical part of this complex. We do recommend that you take this supplement before bedtime, because it can help you relax for a full night of restful sleep.*

Q. I sleep fine. Do I still need melatonin?

A. Yes, you may need melatonin. Because melatonin is so often associated with healthy sleep, it may sound surprising to hear this, but melatonin is critical for supporting actions of the immune system. That means it helps your immune system stay on an even keel, and responding properly when necessary. Melatonin is also associated with cognitive strength, mental well-being, and antioxidant power as well. It is a truly a health-enhancing nutrient.*
